* Over the past six years, the Fund has consistently generated non-correlated outperformance, with the exception of the Valeant-plagued six month period starting in September of 2015. While the Fund did quite well on its Valeant investment, the idea that two major activists were invested in a mega-cap company accused of fraud caused a short term mass exodus away from anything "activist." This adversely affected the price, but not the value, of many of our portfolio positions. After two years of normalized returns, Valeant is certainly behind us and not likely to recur and we expect activism to continue to produce the non-correlated outperformance we have experienced since we launched the fund in 2011.

Mutual Fund investing involves risk including loss of principal. Overall stock market risks will affect the value of individual instruments in which the Fund invests. Factors such as economic growth, market conditions, interest rate levels, and political events affect the U.S. securities markets. When the value of the Fund's investments goes down, your investment in the Fund decreases in value and you could lose money. The Fund is a non-diversified investment company, which makes the value of the Fund's shares more susceptible to certain risks than shares of a diversified investment company. The Fund has a greater potential to realize losses upon the occurrence of adverse events affecting a particular issuer. The value of small or medium capitalization company stocks may be subject to more abrupt or erratic market movements than those of larger, more established companies or the market averages in general. An investor should also consider the Fund's investment objective, charges, expenses, and risk carefully before investing.

The S&P 500 Index is an unmanaged composite of 500-large capitalization companies. This index is widely used by professional investors as a performance benchmark for large-cap stocks. You cannot invest directly into an index.
